

Survey seeks your views on Tadcaster town centre

A new survey is seeking local people's views on Tadcaster town centre.

The survey findings will be used to decide future priorities that help local people get more out of their town centre. The survey is being carried out by the People & Places Partnership and has been commissioned by Selby District Council in conjunction with Tadcaster Town Council and the Tadcaster Business Forum. The findings will be discussed widely with local community groups and businesses as part of deciding future priorities.

Chris Wade, who is organising the survey on behalf of People & Places, says “the survey asks local people about their reactions to the Coronavirus pandemic, how they currently use the town centre and their hopes for Tadcaster in future. We want as many people as possible of all ages to take about 10 minutes to tell us about their town”.

The overall findings from the survey will be shared here as well as at specially organised meetings involving the Town Council, Business Forum, local groups and businesses. The idea is to develop a ‘forward framework’ that considers the ‘how’ and the ‘what’ of looking after the town centre in future. It uses an approach for revitalising town centres that was developed nationally by the People & Places Partnership for the Local Government Association.

Local people have until Sunday, October 18th to fill in the survey which they can access using the web link below or by scanning the QR code with their smart phone. A similar survey has been sent to all businesses in the town centre.
